CHEW VALLEY SKYLINE, 1987

Saturday was fine, so was Monday. What happened to Sunday, then? The Chew weather jinx? Ah well! Adds interest, I suppose. Bob Ashworth's camp followers certainly thought so, as he took them paddling in Chew Reservoir (he can't always get it right).

Bob, who had trained hard through the winter, was confident of victory, and though he led the pack as far as Alphin, he was outsprinted on the run-in by Malcolm Patterson, to lose by one second. One second down again, in third place, a disappointed Billy Bland had been heard to say on the start line that he really wanted to win this one.

The flag caused problems for the checkpoint marshalls, some of whom had difficulty locating their targets. In fact the Featherbed squad never made it at all. When, after over half the field had finished, I met a rather shell-shocked looking Roger just returning from a round trip God knows where. He asked somewhat desperately: "Did anyone find Featherbed?" "Well with the exception of five-and-a-half-hundred runners, No!"

The spirit of the fells was well demonstrated by the runners on their way down from a marshall-less Featherbed. They sped down tight-lipped, with no intention of giving the game away to the poor souls slogging their way up.

The problem of increasing numbers is now causing us some concern. Whilst on the one hand it's nice to play the numbers game, we must consider the effect that such a large entry has on the quality of the event, and the impact on the environment of what this year became a procession. Is it time to limit the numbers. Your views on this will be appreciated.

On a very serious note there was theft of monies and equipment from the men's changing room. The culprits have been caught and the missing monies and equipment that I know about has been returned. Punishment has been meted out to the culprits by their coach, teachers and parents. If you have anything missing, please let me know. A depressing episode.

Paul Braithwaite Outdoor Sports provided prizes to a value of £250 — a special thank-you for eight years' continuous support.

Just thank Tony Ratcliffe who, after last year's "Playing in the Snow" certificate, followed up this year with his woodcut of Chew Reservoir from the Laddow track. Sue Kiveal took a holiday and wrote most of the certificates, whilst Don's press gang wrote the rest. My wife Pat, and her valiant team, once again served the food ("the worst job of all"), and Tony & Sue took the administrative work off me. The usual gang of helpers plus a few, still shell-shocked new hands, turned out. And to them and you, whose help no matter how small, is greatly appreciated, many thanks.

Thanks go to the North-West Water Authority, Mr Crowther, Stamford Estates and Robert Fletcher & Son for access to private land, and to their tenant farmers for their co-operation. Thanks to the local police, the mountain rescue teams, the St John's Ambulance and the Raynet Organisation.

First Sunday in March next year — see you then.
